Induction to Pedagogy for Parents

WHY?

To achieve integration of parents into the digital lives of their children, and their ability to support and educate the youngest and most senior members of their families on issues related to digital and media literacy.

To support parent's role as facilitators of learning in a family learning model.

Parents should develop understanding of the issues related to online learning and the use of dynamic online tools.

HOW?

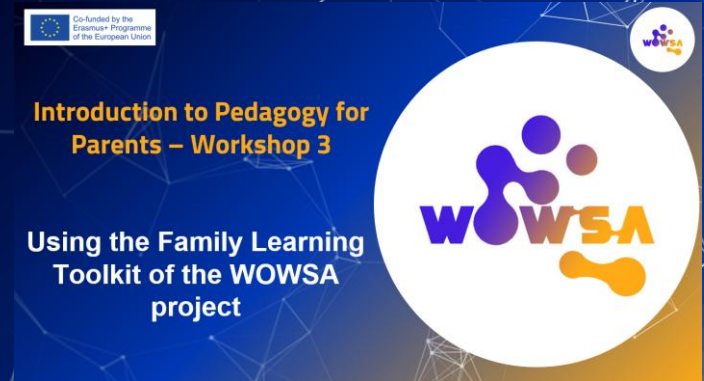

By providing parents with basic instruction in best practice pedagogic approaches and guidelines for safe online use.

Family learning

Family Learning encourages family members to learn together as and within a family, with a focus on intergenerational learning. Family learning activities can also be specifically designed to enable parents to learn how to support their children's learning. 'Family learning is a powerful method of engagement and learning which can foster positive attitudes towards life-long learning, promote socio-economic resilience and challenge educational disadvantage'.*

Family learning: Analysing learning needs

WHY?

- To fill the gap between what is and what should be.
- To gain a deeper understanding of the family's needs.
- To be able to adapt the WOWSA resources and meet the needs of the family.
- To increase the confidence of parents to engage in their child's learning.

HOW?

By conducting needs assessment surveys, interviews and focus groups.

WOWSA Digital Literacy Curriculum for Parents

WHY?

- to support parents to take on the role of educators within their family unit to address this topic;
- to empower parents to tackle the 'family digital divide' within their own family unit;
- to empower parents to develop their own digital and media literacies and to support the youngest and most senior members of their family to do the same;
- to offer creative mediums and methodology as a way to attract parents.

HOW?

The content of the programme comprises six modules and addresses three subject areas:

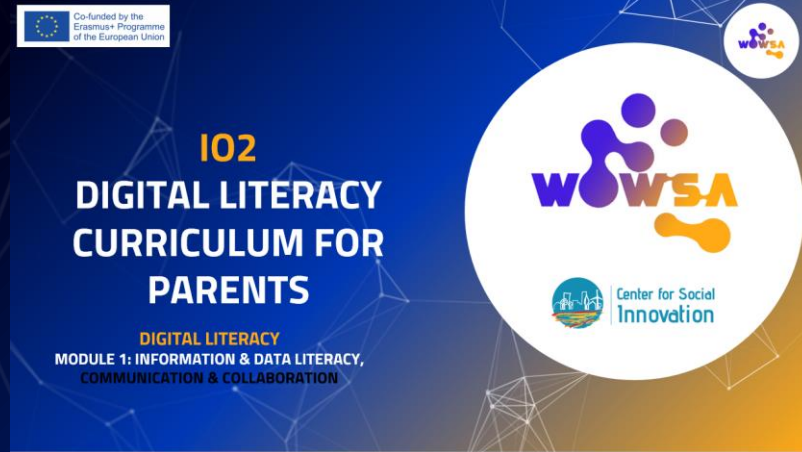

- digital literacy,
- media literacy,
- social media literacy.

The modules related to digital literacy are linked to the DIGCOMP 2.1 Framework for Citizens and aim to provide a detailed grounding for parents on the topic of digital literacy.

Day 2

Table of Contents

- Educational Potential of Comics
- Comics as part of family learning
- WOWSA Induction Pedagogy Programme
- Creating a comic

With an educational comic we can transfer information, communicate concepts, present facts and in the same time deal with social issues.

Presenting a complex information within a narrative can make a certain topic easier to understand; we can engage persons with lower literacy levels.

Using the Family Learning Toolkit of the WOWSA project

Family Learning Toolkit

The Family Learning Toolkit aims to provide resources that appeal to different age groups to improve their digital skills and educate them on the threats that they face in the digital world.

The toolkit contains three types of learning resources:

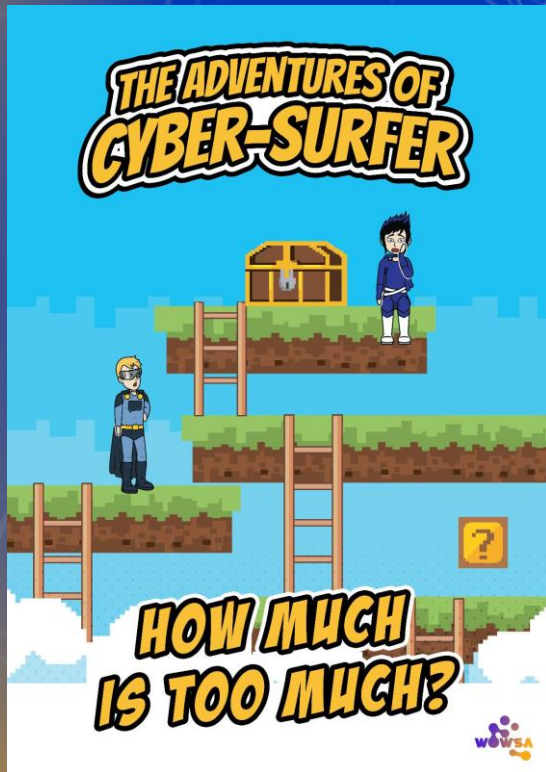

-  Comic Strips
-  Interactive Magazines
-  Audiobooks

Family Learning Toolkit

The Family Learning Toolkit presents age-appropriate learning materials for family members of three different age groups:

- Comic strips that encourage safe online activities for children between the ages of 8-12 years of age. These cartoon-like comic strips identify the dangers of the internet and offer solutions to act against online threats.
- Explainer videos, self-help resources, games and puzzles are presented through an interactive digital magazine for teenagers and young adults aged 13-20.
- A range of audiobooks for senior adult learners and grandparents to highlight specific risks and pitfalls that senior adults might encounter online.

Using the Family Learning
Toolkit of the WOWSA project

Audiobooks for senior adult learners and grandparents

The family learning toolkit provides a range of audiobooks for senior adult learners and grandparents on nine topics. These resources aim to highlight some of the specific risks and pitfalls that senior adults are susceptible to online and what they can do to mitigate the threats they face in the digital world.

Now let's play a practical demonstration of two audiobooks:

- Disinformation, fake news and fact-checking
- Dangers of over-sharing online
